Four members of the Wayne County 4-H Ambassador’s Team (l-r): Collin Dodgion, Ashlee Smith, Erin Ferry and Zoe Harold) recently traveled to the National Association of Extension 4-H Agents in Portland, Oregon and gave a workshop on the Wayne County 4-H Quilt Trail. The team presented to nearly 20 4-H Extension Agents and youth development professionals, from across the United States, on how they created, marketed, procured funding, and got the community involved in this community service initiative. The trail presently has nearly 25 barn/building quilts with several more being created for addition to the trail. The team would like to thank the WV Humanities Council for their continued support of the quilt trail as well as all the sponsors and donors who helped make the trip to Portland a reality. The team is under the direction of 4-H Leaders and 4-H Extension Agent, Julie Tritz.

To learn more about the quilt trail, contact the WVU Wayne County Extension Service office at (304) 272-6839.